I'm going to send you to sing sing prison 1 2 3 and I'll be coming around the mountain when I come, I'll be coming around the mountain when I come, I'll be riding Six White Horses I'll be riding Six White Horses I'll be riding Six White Horses when I come. Mr Rosiak of all the people I have to deal with I think you're the poorest one so you'll have to wait but we'll still have fun.

Did you ever call that insurance company and tell him you caused a big accident because you know we're going to have to sit down at that big table and figure out what it's going to take for you to make me whole cuz right now walking out the night before the jury trial after I emailed you a week before to stop contacting them see you in court boy oh boy did you really tell the court 10 days before us to quit because we didn't get no note till the weekend in court was Monday morning at 9:30 man you think for $8,000 you would have liked showed up and let me write you a check he never did contact his own you any more money we signed all the papers and initialed all the squares and you went at it knowing it only one person was on the move out and three on the contract and that we had already paid the contract and that the Silverstein was making us give him money outside of any contract with no standing had no documents saying we owed him money. He's waving around a Berkshire Hathaway California homes contract to Hanson Lee and the owners giving us a receipt that Hanson got the money cash money according to the court when you give him a cashier's check. You told us you had so much stuff to quit contacting you. You know I told you I smell something fishy so that same day we wrote you a note to only contact my wife because I became crazy and by law could no longer assist in my own defense meaning that you never got a hold of the wife. Well you know the only reason I'm saying all this is I'm going to bring it up in court and I'm going to show them this exact piece of paper.

So I just want you to hang on there you know you been to Disneyland. It's just kind of like waiting in a long line for the Bambi Adventure. Only sad thing is your Bambi's dad on the ride you chose to get on one of those adult rides all the other children was waiting to get on the one with no horns that's where the big line was.

Subject: Contact Michael Gasio regarding evidence Phat Tran before 4:00 p.m. with evidence you are complying with the law or the clock Runs Out MM17

Dear Mr. Silverstein's Clerk,

This will be the final piece of evidence I share with you before federal wire fraud/civil rights/Rico and state criminal courts begin.

From here on, I will continue processing the full record of evidence, 56% is still unreviewed by AI but I have no obligation to share anything further with you unless compelled by formal discovery. You had your time and Steve left with the physical evidence in his hand just like the commissioner put in her folder—two weeks to reconsider your position—and you chose instead to return to court and double down on behavior that has now crossed the line into criminal misconduct.

As a former principal and state tasked investigator, I'll put it plainly:
You've earned a place in the time-out room.

The statement you made in a published newspaper article years ago—describing your role as “an assembly line with an unmanageable caseload it only takes 15 minutes in court” to get paid—is now ironic. That same casual disregard for accuracy, fairness, and ethical conduct is what brought you here. But make no mistake: the assembly line ends here.

In the past when the assembly line was unfair the workers through their shoes in I'm not Japanese I gorilla glued a thermal nuclear device on your assembly line between the poor displaced people you prey on and the clock is ticking down to 4:00 p.m.

Chief Justice Maria D. Hernandez will metaphorically—and perhaps literally—be in the room. She represents the law, the people, and the conscience of the California judicial system. The question she will ask is simple:

> Did you uphold the law, or were you simply a flaw in it?

Let me be clear:

Your behavior in this matter was reprehensible. Your firm knowingly concealed evidence, filed false claims, grossly inflated basic repair costs, and appeared in court without proper standing—after being warned, in writing, with supporting documents. You had the receipts. You had the screenshots. You had the facts.

And yet, you chose to perjure yourself after being shown the receipt from your customer the rent was paid for June on May 30th to his contracted agent at their place of employment.

Let me be clear on another point: this isn't just about fraud on the court. It's about misprision. I am fully aware of attorney-client confidentiality. However, when you have had physical evidence handed to you, acknowledged that you need things in physical form rather than by email, and then still come back to court after weeks of consideration to hide an ongoing felony, you cross into misprision territory.

In other words, you had full knowledge of the evidence, and you actively chose to conceal it, misleading the court in the process. This is not just an upset customer scenario. This is about your deliberate choice to cover up a felony after having the physical proof in your hands. And that is why this is misprision, not just a procedural misstep.

Feel free to let me know if you want any more tweaks!

The clock is now ticking. These materials are being routed to state investigators, the Department of Real Estate, the State Bar, and the FBI, with formal complaints already in progress.

If you still wish to resolve this matter professionally, you may call me at (559) 287-9955 before 4:01 PM. After that, the record will reflect that you failed to act in good faith.

Let the record show: the people of the State of California—and its Orange County Chief Justice—is now watching. See they were all there they're in court with us that day in spirit now they'll be there in the letter of the law.

Sincerely,

Michael Andrew Gasio
